Make a will & make a difference for Wills Week 2024

Wills Week is a public awareness campaign from Public Trust that aims to raise awareness among New Zealanders about the importance of having a will. It seeks to emphasise that everyone has assets worth protecting or passing on to future generations.

We appreciate your support and look forward to seeing your ideas come to life.

We welcome you to join us in spreading the word about this Wills Week campaign among your circles, supporters, networks, and communities.

2024 campaign

Your will is a powerful tool

From your local sports club to a humanitarian effort, charities and not-for-profit organisations give so much to our lives and communities. So, this will week if you're passionate about a club, charity or community cause, you might like to think about leaving a gift in your will.

These kinds of gifts, called bequests, are an important source of funding that enable charities and not-for-profits to sustain their programmes, expand their activities and reach their goals, by making a bequest, big or small, New Zealanders generosity lives on, helping to provide care and support, aiding scientific research, promoting education and enriching the arts.

From 15 - 21 July, Wills Week celebrates the power of a will to make a difference in the lives of whānau, friends and even complete strangers. Making a will doesn't need to be difficult or expensive and it usually takes about half an hour. But as your chance in life to say what happens after you're gone, it's priceless.

At Public Trust we've been helping Kiwis with their wills for over 150 years. We're New Zealand's largest provider of estate planning and administration services and one of the largest charitable trust administrators, helping charities distribute funds back to our communities. We might be big, but people are at the heart of everything we do and we aim to make what's often a difficult time a little bit easier.

If a charity has touched your life, or the life of someone close, leaving a gift in your will, after taking care of whānau and friends, is the perfect way to say thank you. There's no time like the present.

We encourage you to align your Wills Week activity to this topic and leverage the resources.

Key messages

Here are the talking points to guide your discussions during Wills Week.

After taking care of family and friends, consider leaving a gift to a club, charity or community cause in your will this Wills Week.

Passionate about supporting a charity or not-for-profit? Your kindness and generosity can live on by including a charitable gift in your will. Make a difference this Wills Week by making or updating your will.

Are you one of the many Kiwi over 18 without a will? Your will can not only help whānau and friends, but also a club, charity or community cause you care about. More Kiwi are leaving a gift in a will, but it's not something that's widely known. It means there is a big opportunity to make a positive impact.

A lot of people think you need to leave a large amount of money to make a gift in your will. In fact, any amount will make a big difference to a cause close to your heart.

Wills Week webinar

Make this week your Wills Week.

Wills Week celebrates the power of your will to make a difference in the lives of whānau, friends and even complete strangers. As well as money and property, wills can also cover important things like nominating a guardian for your children and what your wishes are for things like your KiwiSaver, pets, family heirlooms and giving back by leaving a gift in your will.

To help with this, we're running a free live webinar to understand the importance of having an up-to-date will and explore the various options for including a gift to a chosen club, charity or community cause.
